I'll hit it with this wooden spoon. Listen.

Good idea, Martin. I wonder if I could make a violin. I'll get my craft book.

Look, here's how to make a tambourine. I bet we have an old pie plate we could use.

But no violin . . .

There. I fastened the last bottle cap. Any luck finding your other craft book?

JINGLE JANGLE

No, but I found some beads in this bottle. Can we use them?

The cello is a little late. Please try it again from G.

The beads make a nice rattle when you shake the bottle.

Maybe I left my book here on the counter. Oops!

Martin, I wish you'd stop making so much noise and help me look for my other craft book. How else will we figure out how to make more instruments?

CLANG CLANG CLANG

I know! I bet it's here in the workroom.

Hey! Listen to these two blocks when I cover them with sandpaper and rub them together.

SCHSCHSCHSCHSCHSCH

And these sticks make a clop-clop sound when you tap them.

Martin, please! I'm trying to concentrate. Oh! I remember! My craft book is under my bed!

CLOP CLOP CLOP

Well, I can't believe it. This book doesn't tell you how to make a violin either. Now we'll never have an orchestra.

We don't need violins, Amy. See, we have a tambourine, a rattle, cymbals, blocks, and tapping sticks. Not to mention this buzzer I made with a comb and a piece of paper.

OK, everyone. We've warmed up enough. From the beginning . . .

We sound wonderful! Now all we need is an audience.
